7	Brief Report	An interactive and learner-centric activity titled "Phoneme Placard Quiz: Identification of English Consonant and Vowel Phonemes through Hindi Equivalents" was organised for the students of MA 2nd Semester. The purpose of the activity was to help students understand English phonemes in a practical and engaging manner by comparing them with approximate Hindi sound equivalents. Through placard-based quizzes and phonetic games, students actively participated in identifying consonant and vowel phonemes, improving their pronunciation, listening, and phonetic transcription skills. The activity commenced with a brief introduction to English phonetics and phonology by the faculty coordinator. Students were introduced to various English vowel and consonant phonemes along with their approximate Hindi sound equivalents. Small placards containing IPA symbols, English words, and Hindi equivalents were prepared by the students. Different interactive rounds were conducted during the activity. The following rounds of activities were conducted : 1. Raise the Correct Placard : A sound or word, was pronounced and students were asked to raise the corresponding phoneme placard. 2. Hindi to English Sound Matching ; Students matched Hindi sounds with the nearest English phonemes and discussed similarities and differences. 3. Minimal Pair Identification : Students identified contrasting phonemes through minimal pairs such as: • ship/sheep • full/fool • bat/bad 4. Human Phoneme Chain ; Students arranged themselves according to the phonemic sequence of spoken words. The activity was conducted successfully and received enthusiastic participation from students. The activity transformed the teaching of phonetics into an engaging and interactive learning experience. It helped students overcome hesitation in pronunciation and enhanced their understanding of English phonology through practical application.
